The majority of people in Cornwall have a faith, and faith communities play a valuable role in society by providing a range of services. These faith communities also have an important role to play in influencing public policy.

Interfaith networks are working to build good relations between the different religious communities in Cornwall to enhance these existing roles.

Cornwall's county-wide faith network is called the Cornwall Faith Forum.

The aim of the Cornwall Faith Forum is to:

- Be a voice for the worshipping faith communities in Cornwall and for the people they serve

Cornwall Faith Forum's objectives are to:

- Promote understanding and dialogue between faith communities
- Challenge intolerance
- Support strategic working
- Explore the development of an Interfaith Centre in Cornwall
- Provide a network for district faith representatives
